Quanta Services to Ring Opening Bell at New York Stock Exchange

Company Celebrates 20 Year Listing Anniversary

HOUSTON, Feb. 12, 2018 /PRNewswire/ -- Quanta Services, Inc. (Quanta) (NYSE: PWR) announced today that Duke Austin, President and Chief Executive Officer of Quanta Services, will ring the opening bell at the New York Stock Exchange this morning at 9:30 a.m. EST, marking the company's 20th anniversary of trading on the prestigious exchange.

"Quanta was founded 20 years ago recognizing that our nation's energy infrastructure needed significant upgrade, expansion and modernization and that a national specialty contractor like Quanta would play an essential role in meeting that need. Since its initial public offering in February 1998, Quanta has grown more than sixty-fold, become one of North America's leading electric power, oil and gas and communications infrastructure solutions providers and expanded into select international markets," said Duke Austin, President and Chief Executive Officer of Quanta Services. "There is strong demand for our construction-led solutions, and we believe that will continue as electric utilities invest in infrastructure modernization to improve reliability, as pipeline and related energy infrastructure is developed to harvest and move abundant hydrocarbon resources, and as communications infrastructure investment increases to meet demand for bandwidth and speed-intensive services. Quanta's achievements have been made possible by its 33,000 employees, who are the best in the business. We believe Quanta's future is bright and we look forward to many years of continued success."

Members of Quanta's management and board of directors will join Mr. Austin as he rings the opening bell. A live stream of The Bell can be viewed at <https://www.nyse.com/bell> and on various financial and other news outlets.
