Quanta Services Announces Definitive Agreement to Sell Its Telecommunications Subsidiaries to Dycom Industries for $275 Million

Transaction Enables Further Focus on Electric Power & Pipeline Infrastructure Markets

HOUSTON, Nov. 19, 2012 /PRNewswire/ -- Quanta Services, Inc. (NYSE: PWR) today announced that it has entered into a definitive agreement to sell its telecommunications subsidiaries to Dycom Industries, Inc. (NYSE: DY) for approximately $275 million in cash, subject to final adjustments. The subsidiaries included in the transaction comprise substantially all of Quanta's domestic telecommunications infrastructure services operations. Quanta intends to use the proceeds of the transaction to support its ongoing strategic growth initiatives primarily associated with electric power and pipeline infrastructure and for general corporate purposes. The required waiting period under the Hart-Scott Rodino Act has expired, and subject to customary conditions, the transaction is expected to close by December 31, 2012. Stephens Inc. served as financial advisor to Quanta Services in the transaction.

"Significant electric power infrastructure investments are anticipated in North America and worldwide over the next several years, and the development of North American energy resources from conventional and unconventional formations will require major infrastructure expansion. This transaction enables Quanta to further strategically focus on energy infrastructure markets, which we believe will undergo substantial development in the coming years," said Jim O'Neil, president and chief executive officer of Quanta Services. "Dycom Industries is a leader in the telecommunications infrastructure industry, and we are pleased that our telecommunications infrastructure services employees will be part of a high-quality organization once this transaction is completed. Further, I want to recognize Ken Trawick, who has been with Quanta since 1999 and has served as the president of our telecommunications operations since 2004, for his leadership and dedication to Quanta. We wish him well as he works with Dycom to ensure a smooth transition of operations. I would also like to thank all of our telecommunications employees for their significant contributions to our organization over the years."

The subsidiaries in the transaction account for substantially all of Quanta's domestic telecommunications infrastructure services operations. The trailing twelve month revenues through September 30, 2012, associated with these subsidiaries were approximately $535 million, which includes approximately $34 million for services performed within Quanta's Fiber Optic Licensing segment and approximately $39 million of revenues from other Quanta segments. After closing the transaction, Quanta plans to disclose the estimated financial effects of the transaction on this year's fourth quarter and full year 2012 results.
